You may want to place a call to Sen. Gary Stevens to express your concern and sympathies and to ask him to keep in touch with you if has news of residents lost or in need of any kind of aid. Same for Gabrielle I'd think.

Passengers die in Kodiak plane crash

By KYLE HOPKINS

khopkins@adn.com

(01/05/08 18:11:42)

A Servant Air flight carrying 10 people crashed about 100 yards from the Kodiak airport just before 2 p.m. today, according to Alaska State Troopers and the U.S. Coast Guard."There are four people in stable condition, the other six conditions, I am unaware of," said Chief Petty Officer Barry Lane.

In a voice mail, Troopers spokeswoman Megan Peters said little was known about the crash Saturday afternoon, but that some passengers had been killed.

According to the Coast Guard, a Trident Seafoods floatplane recovered four of the passengers, while a Coast Guard helicopter recovered another.

Those passengers were taken to Providence Kodiak Island Medical Center.

"The remaining five are trapped in the fuselage. And as we're speaking, the Alaska state toopers and the Kodiak police just recovered the remaining five people on board," Lane said just before 5 p.m.

"Originally the plane was submerged, and now that the tide has receded, rescue crews were able to recover the bodies," he said a moment later.

The plane, a Piper Navajo Chieftan, was headed to Homer, he said.

Governor,

Walt just left me a message that a 9 seat plane went into the water on its trip from Kodiak to Homer. The plane was close to Homer which should make search and rescue operations a little easier. No word yet on status of the nine individuals in the water but I will pass along updates as Walt sends them.

I didn't go through all, yet, but the ones you point out are interesting.

The increase in min wage will be contentious in that working group and won't go anywhere.
